WHY IT MATTERS

THE SCALE ISN'T THE WHOLE STORY

GLP-1 medications quiet your appetite, so you eat less and lose weight. That's a real win. But when researchers measure body composition in GLP-1 trials, a meaningful share of the weight lost is lean mass, not just fat.

25–40%
of weight lost showed up as lean mass in GLP-1 trial body-composition studies

2–3×
strength sessions a week is the most common recommendation to protect muscle

20–30g
of protein per meal is a practical target many experts suggest

Lean mass isn't only muscle; it also includes water and organ tissue. But part of it is the muscle you use to climb stairs, carry groceries and catch yourself if you trip. This happens with any fast weight loss, not just medication, and it's largely within your control.

> The good news: in studies where people paired a calorie deficit with resistance training, the share of weight lost as lean mass dropped substantially. Training tells your body which tissue to keep.

WHY MUSCLE IS WORTH PROTECTING

- It keeps you strong and independent for everyday tasks.
- It supports your joints, balance and fall prevention as you age.
- It helps your body manage blood sugar.
- It makes it easier to keep weight off once you reach your goal.

THE THREE HABITS THAT MAKE THE DIFFERENCE

01

LIFT 2–3× A WEEK

Work your whole body: legs, hips, back, chest and arms. Challenge matters more than duration.

02

PROTEIN FIRST

With a smaller appetite, every meal counts. Eat your protein before anything else on the plate.

03

TRACK STRENGTH

If your weights hold steady or climb while the scale drops, you're losing mostly fat.

YOUR STARTER PLAN

TWO WORKOUTS. TWICE A WEEK.

Alternate Workout A and Workout B on non-consecutive days (for example Monday and Thursday). Rest 60–90 seconds between sets. Choose a weight where the last two reps feel hard but your form stays clean.

WORKOUT A

MOVE	SETS × REPS	EASIER OPTION	COACH TIP
Squat to a chair	3 × 8–10	Sit-to-stand, hands on thighs	Push through your whole foot
Dumbbell row	3 × 10 each side	Band row	Pull elbow toward your hip
Incline push-up	3 × 8–10	Wall push-up	Body in one straight line
Farmer carry	3 × 30–40 sec	Lighter weights, shorter walk	Stand tall, shoulders down

WORKOUT B

MOVE	SETS × REPS	EASIER OPTION	COACH TIP
Hip hinge / deadlift	3 × 8–10	Hands-on-hips hinge	Push hips back, flat back
Step-up	3 × 8 each leg	Lower step, hold a rail	Drive through the front heel
Overhead press	3 × 8–10	Seated, lighter dumbbells	Ribs down, exhale as you press
Dead bug	3 × 8 each side	Arms only or legs only	Low back stays on the floor

ON LOW-ENERGY DAYS

- Do fewer sets rather than skipping the session. Consistency beats intensity.
- Eat a little protein and drink water an hour or so before you train.
- Feeling queasy? Go lighter, slow down and skip moves that make it worse.
- Add weight or reps only when the current load feels manageable for two sessions in a row.

> Keep moving between sessions: a daily walk supports your heart and energy. Lifting protects muscle; walking complements it.

PROTEIN MADE EASY

MAKE PROTEIN THE FIRST BITE

Many experts suggest roughly 0.5–0.7 grams of protein per pound of body weight a day while losing weight, spread across your meals. Ask your prescriber for the target that's right for you. These foods each give you roughly 20 grams or more:

FOOD	SERVING	ABOUT
Chicken or turkey breast	3 oz cooked	25g
Cottage cheese	1 cup	25g
Salmon or other fish	3 oz cooked	20g
Greek yogurt (plain)	1 cup	20g
Protein shake	1 serving	20–30g
Eggs plus egg whites	2 eggs + ½ cup whites	25g

WHEN YOUR APPETITE IS SMALL

- Eat protein first, then vegetables, then everything else.
- Choose smaller, more frequent protein snacks if full meals are hard.
- A protein shake is an easy backup on days you can't face food.

TRACK THE RIGHT NUMBERS

Write down one key lift from each workout. The goal: your strength holds or improves while your weight comes down.

DATE	BODY WEIGHT	SQUAT / STEP-UP	ROW	PUSH-UP / PRESS	ENERGY (1–10)
